PROJECT ROUSSEAU OFFERS SUPPORT SERVICES TO UKRAINIAN YOUTH FLEEING WAR

If you have any family members, friends, or acquaintances who recently arrived in New York City from Ukraine, Project Rousseau could serve as a resource, community, and support system helping them adjust to and navigate life in NYC.

Project Rousseau is a nonprofit organization in NYC that empowers youth in communities in the greatest need to pursue and excel in higher education. Many of the students who we serve are refugees and new arrivals to the USA. We are working with Ukrainians in New York City, and we are eager to offer our services to any youth, aged 0 to 20 years old, who has recently fled the war.

We take a holistic approach to our programs. They range from educational support—including but not limited to homework help, ESL, and college application guidance—through to social service support such as connecting students to immigration counseling, assistance navigating housing/food/health challenges, and more. Recently, we helped a young boy who arrived from Ukraine in February get enrolled in hockey camp on a scholarship. He and his mom did an interview for NY1, which can be viewed here.

We have a comprehensive "Student Needs Closet" at our office that has many everyday essentials like toothbrushes and female hygiene products. Our “Student Needs Closet” also has baby wipes and diapers, and our office has a nursery room to which we welcome people to bring their babies and young children.

Our services are completely free to qualifying students—all those fleeing the war qualify. We would love to offer and provide our support in any way that we can. If you or someone you know qualifies, please don’t hesitate to reach out to Zoe Engels at zoe.engels@projectrousseau.org.
